

We started showing Samoyeds soon after we were married. Over the years, we have had many Sams and several litters of puppies who have gone on to share their lives with many other families.

Boomer is our oldest and came to us from a friend in CO. He is 6 years old and likes to think of himself as the elder statesman of the family—sometimes grouching around, sometimes playing.

Patty is the next oldest and is now 5 years old. She was born at our house in one of the litters we have had over the years. She did not like going to dog shows but does love to “hold down the sofa” for us.

She is the biggest “talker” of the group and is always more than willing to give her opinion on any situation.

Scout (4 years) is next in line and only because he was born ½ hour before his sister. He is the big boy of the group and believes that he is the size of a Chihuahua. At 55 lbs., that leaves us with a very large lap dog. Scout is also “owner” of our son Derek and enjoys his time with him also. He loves to travel and show off his cute side.

Annie—sister of Scout is 4 years old also. She also loves to travel and show. Earlier this spring, she demonstrated her heritage by receiving her Herding Instinct Certification using goats and sheep. Annie notes that she considers herself “owner “ of our son Colin. Last summer, she had her first litter of puppies from which we kept:

Boo. Boo is so named because from birth she has had a cream-colored “mask” across her face. Also, because she tends to scare the older dogs. She is 10 months old and has recently started her show career which for her entails car rides, hotel rooms, and playing with new dogs and people. A very social girl, she finds many things to keep her busy. Boo also received her Herding Instinct Certification at 8 months of age and now wants goats.

We would like to thank Cedar Creek for their wonderful care of all past and present family members who have frequented the clinic.
